1. INTRODUCTION

Exmouth Community College is committed to creating a working environment in which all staff are treated fairly and with dignity and respect.

Unacceptable behaviour will not be tolerated. It has a detrimental and negative effect on individuals and ultimately an organisation's efficiency.

This policy applies to all Exmouth Community College employees. It also applies to all governors, volunteers and contractors undertaking work on behalf of Exmouth Community College. These groups will be collectively referred to as 'individuals' within this policy.

All individuals have a clear role to play in helping to create a positive working environment. In particular, individuals should be aware of their own conduct and behave in a manner which ensures and promotes acceptable behaviour. The Principal, all staff and the Governing Board have a responsibility to raise awareness of this issue and challenge and stop unacceptable behaviour in the workplace.

All individuals should be prepared to take appropriate action if they observe or have evidence that a colleague is being subjected to unacceptable behaviour and/or observe a colleague demonstrating unacceptable behaviour.

To preserve and protect a positive working environment the organisation has existing policies that set clear standards of conduct which must be observed and enable employees to raise concerns. These include the Staff Code of Conduct, Equality in Employment Policy and the Grievance Policy. In addition, certain professions such as teachers and social workers have standards of conduct set by their registered body.

Where formal action is necessary because of an employee's unacceptable behaviour action may be taken through the Disciplinary Policy. Managers should seek advice from the HR Department.

2. POLICY STATEMENT

Exmouth Community College is committed to tackling behaviour deemed inappropriate in working relationships. In most instances issues can be resolved informally, however where issues are very serious or occur repeatedly, formal conduct procedures may be invoked.

This policy defines a number of principles and sets out procedures that ensure that behaving in a professional manner is the accepted standard for all people working within the organisation.

Any unacceptable behaviour directed towards another, including harassment based on gender, age, disability, gender re-assignment, marital & civil partnership status, pregnancy, maternity status, race (including colour, nationality & ethnic or national origins), religion or belief, sex and sexual orientation is unlawful and will not be tolerated in any form by this organisation. Action may be taken under the Disciplinary Policy.

3. AIMS & OBJECTIVES

This policy aims to help individuals and their managers resolve problems informally and in a positive manner where appropriate. If necessary, support and assistance can be sourced initially from the HR Department, who may seek help and advice from HR Direct or the Mediation Service.

The objectives of this Policy are to:

- Ensure that all individuals are aware of the types of unacceptable behaviour and their responsibilities for preventing such behaviour;
- Ensure that all individuals understand what action may be taken to prevent unacceptable behaviour, including formal conduct action where appropriate;
- Promote a climate where individuals feel confident to bring forward issues of unacceptable behaviour without fear of victimisation;
- Ensure that all issues of unacceptable behaviour are responded to quickly, positively and in confidence where appropriate.

4. DEFINITIONS

People behave acceptably when they:

- Afford dignity, trust and respect for everyone and themselves;
- Have awareness of the effects of their behaviour on others and only make reasonable and manageable demands;
- Communicate honestly and openly, clearly stating what they need and expect of others;
- Provide and are receptive to honest feedback based on evidence;
- Challenge discriminatory language and behaviour in an appropriate way;

In relation to unacceptable behaviour, the definitions and principles adopted in this policy are in line with the Equality Act 2010 and are as follows:

Protected characteristics

The Act offers protection to people with 'protected characteristics'. These are: gender; age; disability; gender reassignment; marriage and civil partnership; pregnancy and maternity; race; religion and belief; sex and sexual orientation.

Discrimination is to treat someone less favourably than another person because of a protected characteristic they have, or are thought to have, because they associate with someone who has a protected characteristic or where it is perceived that an individual possesses a protected characteristic. Indirect discrimination can occur where a provision, criterion or practice is applied which unfairly disadvantages someone on these grounds. Discrimination is unlawful.

Harassment is unwanted conduct relating to a protected characteristic (except pregnancy & maternity and marriage & civil partnership), which may also be based upon association or perception, that has the purpose or effect of violating a person's dignity or creating an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment. E.g. harassment based on a person's association with their disabled child or harassment based on a perception that a person holds a religious belief. It includes unwanted conduct of a sexual nature, verbal, non-verbal and physical conduct.

An individual may complain of harassment even if they don't possess the protected characteristic or the harassment is not directed at them (See Para. 8.7 – Witnesses to Unacceptable Behaviour). It is essential to keep a record of any incidents that could be deemed as harassment of staff, to take appropriate action and to record the measures put in place to stop the harassment

When defining behaviour in cases of harassment, it is appropriate to place emphasis on the recipient's experience rather than the motivation of the person complained about.

Bullying is a type of harassment, which consists of persistent actions, criticism, or personal abuse in public or private, which humiliate, intimidate, frighten, undermine or demean the individual. People affected by bullying often feel the matter appears trivial or that they have difficulty in describing it. Bullying can be defined in many ways but is generally behaviour that is identified as a misuse of power.

Behaviour that is acceptable to some individuals may cause embarrassment, distress or anxiety to others.

Examples of what Exmouth Community College regards as unacceptable behaviour include:

- Using aggressive language, threatening, ridiculing, ignoring people or repeatedly shouting;
- Telephoning people at home unnecessarily (for example, demanding work when the person is absent due to sickness or ill health);
- Focusing only on weaknesses;
- Bringing up details of someone's private life inappropriately;
- Leaving impossibly long lists of tasks and making unreasonable demands;
- Criticising people or maliciously gossiping about them in their absence;
- Ridiculing or demeaning someone – picking on them or setting them up to fail;
- Comments or jokes, about distinctive peoples and nationalities;
- Frequent comments about aspects of physical appearance or using forms of address that are demeaning;

If this document has been printed please note that it may not be the most up-to-date version.

- Threatening or implying, without reason, that, as a colleague, you will cause the person to lose his/her job or fail to get a promotion or suffer some other form of career difficulty or financial disadvantage;
- Coercing someone to join the harassment/bullying of another person;
- Excluding or marginalising someone or refusing to engage with them appropriately.

This list is not exhaustive. It is simply a guide to help individuals consider their own and others behaviour and gain understanding of what behaviours are unacceptable in the workplace.

It is also recognised that an occasional raised voice or heated debate regarding work-related issues in itself may not be unacceptable behaviour but is communication between colleagues, usually over issues that individuals feel passionate about, and can be a driver in the workplace for developing new ideas and better practices. However, it should be noted that at any time, an individual may believe that the boundary between 'heated debate' and unacceptable behaviour has been crossed and may wish to address the issue.

5.0 MANAGING EMPLOYEES PERFORMANCE

Legitimate, constructive, fair and evidenced criticism of an individual's performance or behaviour at work is not bullying or harassment.

It is important to acknowledge that views and opinions held by others and decisions made by managers and supervisors, may not always coincide with the individual's. It must be recognised that those in positions of management have both a contractual right and responsibility to discharge managerial duties.

Managers may have to deal with capability, conduct or performance issues as part of their management duties or responsibilities. If the concerns are not clearly evidenced to the individual, the individual may perceive criticism as bullying, harassment or discrimination. In such an instance mediation could provide a way of both parties gaining understanding of each other's responsibilities and concerns.

It is unacceptable to condone bullying behaviour under the guise of a particular management style. Whilst recognising that effective management may call for a firm and assertive style to achieve desired outcomes, it should be ensured that individuals are treated with dignity and respect at all times.

6.0 WHO CAN EXPERIENCE UNACCEPTABLE BEHAVIOUR AT WORK?

Any person regardless of gender, age or disability, gender re-assignment, marriage & civil partnership status, pregnancy, maternity status, race (colour, nationality & ethnic or national origins) religion or belief, sex and sexual orientation may experience unacceptable behaviour towards them from work colleagues.

Unacceptable behaviour can occur at any level within the organisation and some people may suffer a multiple burden of bullying, harassment and discrimination.

In cases of harassment, it is very often behaviour perceived by others as being innocuous which is most difficult to deal with and most distressing for the recipient. The recipient may feel this behaviour is intended to harass or bully them, but will be aware that it could be described and interpreted otherwise.

The key question is:

- Is the individual experiencing discomfort, distress, or unhappiness at work as a result of the actions of another person?

Subject to normal performance management practice (see Para.5.0), if the answer to this question is yes, then it is likely they are feeling bullied, harassed and/or discriminated against by someone at work.

7.0 UNACCEPTABLE BEHAVIOUR FROM SERVICE USERS.

Individuals may experience unacceptable behaviour from members of the public, service users, parents or customers. This is outside the scope of this policy, which focuses on acceptable behaviour within the organisation. However, anyone experiencing unacceptable behaviour in the course of their work from members of the public can expect and demand the active support of the Principal, the Governing Board and SLT.

Where the Principal experiences difficulties with parents, consideration may be given to the use of mediation to resolve the issue(s).

8.0 ACTIONS & PROCEDURES

Unacceptable behaviour should not be tolerated and employees are recommended to seek advice and support at the earliest opportunity. This policy suggests a number of options to deal with unacceptable behaviour in the workplace and these are identified below:

8.1 Self Help

Self help is an informal procedure, which may include access to external advice lines, leaflets, posters, the Internet and Intranet, where further information is available. Self Help is not done in isolation; recipients of unacceptable behaviour must have other avenues. Individuals can access further help through the Trade Unions, their friends, the HR Department, and Management as appropriate. Teachers can also contact the Teachers' Support Network.

If this document has been printed please note that it may not be the most up-to-date version.

Self help is individual action to resolve unacceptable behaviour through dialogue with the other party. In many ways this is the ideal solution for the recipient(s). It involves bringing the unwanted nature of the unacceptable behaviour to the attention of the other party with the intention of stopping the behaviour that is causing the problem and agreeing more acceptable ways of behaving. This would ideally be in person or perhaps by writing to the individual or through a third party.

Individuals can make use of the policy and the definitions of acceptable/unacceptable behaviour. In many instances no further action will be required when the unacceptable behaviour and its effect is recognised by the other party who can then vary their behaviour accordingly.

8.2 Reporting Behaviour to the Manager

Individuals may talk over their concerns with their Principal/SLT Link/manager in the first instance. Individuals should make it clear that they wish to deal with the matter under this policy and not lodge a formal grievance at this stage. The Principal/SLT Link/manager will act or advise according to the situation, which might involve some initial investigation and/or contact with the HR Department. The Principal/SLT Link/manager/supervisor might talk through how the individual could manage it informally face to face or perhaps through mediation, before any recourse to the formal grievance procedure. Where the issues are serious the Principal/SLT Link/manager may have to invoke the Disciplinary Policy if the actions/behaviour of the other party is so unacceptable as to be deemed misconduct.

If the concerns relate to the Principal/SLT Link/manager's behaviour, individuals are advised to contact their trade union or the HR Department.

8.3 HR Department

The role of the HR Department is to provide an HR Advisor to listen to the individual's concerns, to enable the individual to explore the options to resolve the matter. This support will remain confidential, unless any disclosure is deemed by the HR Advisor to breach policy, regulations or the law or where there is the risk of harm to either the individual or others. The use of the Whistleblowing Policy or Disciplinary Policy to deal with illegal or grossly unprofessional behaviour could apply in such a situation.

The HR Advisor's role will be to:

- Provide a confidential, unbiased, non-judgemental, contact and signposting service to those who feel they have been subjected to unacceptable behaviour;
- To assist the individual to explore the options available, which may include self-help, counselling, mediation or more formal procedures in accord with Exmouth Community College policies;

If this document has been printed please note that it may not be the most up-to-date version.

8.4 Mediation

For mediation to be successful both/all parties must agree to participate. See Mediation for further information.

Mediation is essentially a voluntary and informal solution focussed process whereby qualified and trained mediators facilitate individuals to reach their own solutions. It may be used prior to the formal Grievance Policy and Procedure Policy and in some circumstances, the Disciplinary Policy, which may completely prevent recourse to formal processes, e.g. mediation may be available to help resolve less serious cases of harassment, such as those not considered to be acts of potential gross misconduct. It is available to anyone working for Exmouth Community College.

There are numerous benefits of using mediation, particularly at an early stage where it can help improve working relationships and resolve issues that, although may not reach any formal stages, can be detrimental to productivity and harmony.

Requests for the Mediation Service should be made by contacting the HR Department in the first instance. See Mediation for further information.

8.5 Invoking the formal Grievance Procedure

The formal grievance procedure is available for use by employees who wish to bring a complaint against another employee where the informal procedure, including mediation, has been ineffective. See Grievance Policy and Procedure for more details.

8.6 Advice to People Accused of Bullying, Harassment and Discrimination

Subject to any informal or formal action taken initially to resolve unacceptable behaviour, the HR Department may also provide information to people who are accused of bullying, harassment and discrimination. They will be given impartial information so that the individual can decide the course of action best suited to him/her at that time. This may include directing the individual to undertake appropriate coaching or training.

Being accused of behaving in unacceptable ways can be equally concerning to the individual. In many cases the individuals are unaware that their behaviour is the cause of another person's distress or discomfort or that it may be unacceptable to others in the workplace.

8.7 Witnesses to Unacceptable Behaviour

The HR Department is also available to people who have witnessed instances of unacceptable behaviour and are unsure how best to proceed. An individual can make a complaint of harassment where he or she is offended by behaviour even if it is not directed at him or her. The individual does not need to possess the relevant protected characteristic.

9.0 EQUALITY STATEMENT

The HR Department, as the first line of contact, will ensure that employees are able to access a copy of the policy.

Exmouth Community College, seeks to eliminate discrimination, advance equality and foster good relations.

Exmouth Community College is committed to the principle of equal opportunities in employment regardless of a person's gender, age, disability, gender re-assignment, marital or civil partnership status, pregnancy, maternity status, race (including colour, nationality and ethnic or national origins), religion or belief, sex and sexual orientation.

This policy should be read in conjunction with the Equality in Employment Policy. No one will unlawfully be disadvantaged on the grounds of age, race or ethnicity, disability, gender and marital status, gender identity, sexual orientation, religion or belief under the operation of this policy.
